First Grade Field Trips

We were so excited to welcome first graders from the Veterans Elementary School this fall at our library! Nine classes visited the library for a presentation, tour, book-themed craft and plenty of silly stories. Students were sent home with a library card application to give to their families. Since the field trips, students from the Veterans have been coming into the library to set up new library cards, play on the computers, and best of all, check out books. If you and your family would like a tour of our Children's Department, stop by our desk and we would love to show you around!

Author Visit at the Vets!

This November we have arranged for local author Alec Carvlin to visit the Veterans Elementary School and talk about his debut picture book, How to Bake a Universe. Called “genius” by Booklist and “indeed tasty” by Publishers Weekly, Carvlin’s hilarious writing mixed with popular illustrator Brian Biggs’ artwork gives children a scientific yet imaginative take on our universe. Carvlin’s author visits are known to be a splendid time, with pre-K and first graders creating their own cosmic sunglasses, listening to a read-aloud of the book, and asking questions about the universe and what being a picture book author is like. Stay tuned for another author visit in the spring!
